A National Conference on Post-COVID-19 Remote Learning: Reflections,
Challenges and Opportunities

31 March 2022

Background

Within the framework of the CNRST-sponsored research program titled “L’intégrité Territoriale, les Provinces du Sud et les Conséquences de la Pandémie de Coronavirus”, the ALCS Laboratory is pleased to announce a National Conference on Post-COVID-19 Remote Learning: Reflections, Challenges and Opportunities. The conference aims to bring together Moroccan academics and researchers to share their research-validated evidence on the experience. The conference is also expected to be a valuable opportunity for educators and practitioners to reflect on the challenges encountered under COVID-19 in order to draw a roadmap for policies and decisions aimed at filling the gaps and consolidating remote learning practices in Moroccan higher education institutions.

Authors are therefore invited to submit abstract proposals of studies dealing with theoretical and/or empirical phenomena relevant to how distance education practices may be further enhanced post-COVID-19. Papers of an interdisciplinary nature approaching remote learning from multiple perspectives are highly valued.

Topics of interest should bring the COVID-19 pandemic to bear on distance education. Specifically, they include, but are not limited to, the themes below:

- Augmented reality and social presence
- Integrating technology in curriculum: Challenges and Strategies
- Psychological impact of distance education
- Technology-supported collaborative and interactive learning

- Tools for 21st century learning
- Education management systems
